

Unrepresented in a Real Estate Transaction? Know the Risks

Consumers who choose to conduct a real estate transaction without a real estate professional are known as “unrepresented parties.” While you aren’t required to have a real estate professional represent you in a real estate transaction, the expert advice, protection, and oversight that comes with being the client of a real estate professional can be very helpful.

If you’re thinking of being an unrepresented party, make sure you understand what a real estate professional representing another party to the transaction can and cannot do for you. A real estate professional must be loyal to their client, and will only be able to provide you with limited services.

- Take a moment to read this important consumer protection information from the Real Estate Council of BC.
- Carefully consider the risks before deciding to be unrepresented in a real estate transaction.
- Expert advice from a real estate professional or other professional (such as a lawyer) who represents your interests can help you navigate the real estate process safely. We urge you to consider getting a real estate professional to represent you in a real estate transaction.

Why are you getting this form?

A real estate professional is required to inform you of the risks of being unrepresented in a real estate transaction. The real estate professional is already representing a client in that same transaction.

How to use this form

Read over this information and ask about anything that is not clear to you. You can complete the optional consumer fields to indicate that you’ve discussed this information with the real estate professional.

What happens next?

After you’ve reviewed the form and completed the optional consumer fields, the real estate professional must complete and sign it.

What You Need to Know

Real estate professionals must be loyal to their clients and work in their best interests. Keep in mind that as an unrepresented party, real estate professionals involved in this transaction will not be working in your interests.

A real estate professional representing someone else in the transaction can only give you limited assistance, such as:

- sharing real estate statistics and general market information
- providing standard real estate contracts and other relevant documents
- helping you fill out a standard real estate contract (but they cannot advise you about what to include in an offer)
- communicating your messages to their client, and from their client to you
- presenting your offers or counteroffers to their client, and from their client to you.

A real estate professional representing someone else in the transaction cannot act in your interests.

The real estate professional cannot:

- give you advice.
- negotiate on your behalf.
- give you any confidential information about their client. (For example, they cannot tell you their client's maximum/minimum price unless their client authorizes them to share this information with you.)

A real estate professional must share all relevant information they know with their client.

This could include:

- your motivation for buying/selling/leasing/renting.
- your maximum/minimum price.
- your preferred terms and conditions.

Be cautious about sharing any confidential information with a real estate professional who represents a client with opposing interests to yours. They must share that information with their client.

Make an Informed Choice

You are receiving this form because you are considering dealing with a real estate professional as an unrepresented party. The real estate professional cannot represent you because they are already representing a client in that same transaction.

As a consumer, it is up to you to decide what kind of working relationship with a real estate professional is best for you.

If you want to be an unrepresented party and use some of the limited services that a real estate professional already representing another party to the transaction can provide, the real estate professional must give you a clear understanding of their obligations to their client and the limitations to the help they can give you.

THE REAL ESTATE COUNCIL OF BC URGES YOU TO SEEK YOUR OWN REAL ESTATE PROFESSIONAL FOR THIS TRANSACTION.

This disclosure is made to you in compliance with section 5-10.1 of the Rules made under the Real Estate Services Act.
